John Hickenlooper
Governor

Dear Fellow Coloradans,

It's no secret that our state is one of the best places for folks to live, work and play. That's because we have a long history of coming together to get things done, despite what political party we might support. Through partnerships and collaboration, we've always found ways to overcome our differences to serve the greater good.

In fact, there are more than 3,000 Coloradans working tirelessly behind the scenes to tackle the important issues we face. The Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions brings neighbors together from all corners of the state and walks of life to make government work better for all of us.

Coloradans are innovative problem solvers – it's just what we do. If you'd like to give back to our community, there's no better way than serving as a board or commission member. Want to help better our education system? Look into the Early Childhood Leadership Commission or one of our Higher Education boards. Have an interest in Colorado's energy future? Learn about the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission or the Energy Impact Assistance Advisory Committee.

With more than 300 boards and commissions, there are plenty of ways to make your voice heard and to improve the day-to-day lives of Coloradans. The Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions is continually looking for qualified candidates. The process to be considered to serve on a board or commission is simple: An application can be found online at www.colorado.gov/governor.

Democracy isn't just something we have – it's something we do. By serving on a board or commission, you'll continue to help Colorado be a place where everyone can succeed. For those who have served or are serving, thank you. For those who are willing and interested, please apply. We're all in this together.

With gratitude,

John Hickenlooper
Governor

JUDICIAL PERFORMANCE COMMISSIONS – TERMS EXPIRE NOVEMBER 30

Number of members: 10 on each of the 23 commissions
Length of Terms: 4 years
Pay/Compensation: Necessary expenses
Frequency of meetings: As needed
Contact: Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation

Commissions on Judicial Performance were created in 1988 by the Colorado General Assembly to provide fair, responsible and constructive evaluations of trial and appellate judges and justices. The evaluations enable voters to make informed decisions in judicial retention elections, and also provide judges with information that can be used to improve their professional skills.

The State Commission on Judicial Performance developed evaluation techniques for district and county judges, justices of the Supreme Court, and judges of the court of appeals. According to statute, those criteria include the following: integrity; legal knowledge; communication skills; judicial temperament; administrative performance; and service to the legal profession and the public.

Local district commissions review the district and county judges in their respective districts. The trial judges' evaluations are developed through survey questionnaires completed by a random sample of persons who have appeared in court before the judge: attorneys (including prosecutors, public defenders, and private attorneys), jurors, litigants, law enforcement personnel, employees of the court, court interpreters, employees of probation offices, employees of local departments of social services, victims of crime, and appellate judges. In addition, commissions consider a self-evaluation completed by the judge, courtroom observations, review of decisions, review of judge statistics such as relevant docket and sentencing statistics, and a personal interview with the judge. The State Commission reviews the supreme court justices and court of appeals judges. The evaluation of the justices of the Colorado Supreme Court and the judges of the Colorado Court of Appeals is the product of survey results from attorneys (including prosecutors, public defenders, and private attorneys), employees of the court (including law clerks and staff attorneys), other appellate judges, and district judges; a self-evaluation completed by the justice or judge, courtroom observations, review of opinions, review of judge statistics, and a personal interview with the justice or judge. Each evaluation includes a narrative with the recommendation stated as "retain," "do not retain," or "no opinion."

There is one commission in each of the 22 judicial districts and one state commission. The Chief Justice, the Governor, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House appoint state and local commission members to four-year terms. Each commission is a ten-member body comprised of four attorneys and six non-attorneys.

Number of members: 7 on each district commission; 15 on the Supreme Court Nominating Commission

Length of Terms: 6 years

Pay/Compensation: Necessary expenses

Frequency of meetings: As needed

Contact: Colorado State Judicial Branch

There is a judicial district nominating commission for each of Colorado's 22 judicial districts that selects nominees for district and county judicial vacancies. Each district nominating commission is chaired by a justice of the Supreme Court, who is a non-voting member of the commission.

Each judicial district nominating commission consists of seven citizens residing in that judicial district. No more than four members can be from the same political party, and there must be at least one voting member from each county in the district. In all districts with populations of more than 35,000, the voting members consist of three people admitted to practice law in Colorado and four people not admitted to practice law in Colorado. In judicial districts with populations under 35,000, at least four voting members are people not admitted to practice law in Colorado. It is determined by majority vote of the governor, attorney general and chief justice how many, if any, of the remaining three members will be persons admitted to practice law in Colorado.

Commission members serve six-year terms. Non-lawyers, who are the majority of every nominating commission, are appointed by the governor. Lawyer members are appointed by joint action of the Governor, Attorney General, and Chief Justice.

The Supreme Court Nominating Commission recommends candidates to serve as judges for the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals. The chief justice of the Supreme Court chairs the commission and is a non-voting member. This commission includes one citizen admitted to practice law in Colorado and one citizen not admitted to practice law residing in each of the state's seven congressional districts, and one additional citizen not admitted to practice law in Colorado.
